

Abstract of the Disclosure:

A method of adjusting a quantity of ink supplied to a printing material by a printing machine includes adjusting the quantity of ink as a function of the printing speed and, upon the 5 occurrence of a change in the printing speed, making a change in the quantity of ink as a function of area coverage to be printed; and an adjusting device for performing the method.

10 HLL/vs